Herington Kansas has always been home for Roy Fulton. Now he returns to stay as well as attend his high school class reunion. All Roy has ever wanted is to start his farm along with being with the one woman he has always loved to start a family. There is only one problem with this dream. The woman he has wanted all his life hasn't been in it for years. Herington was a place in Amie Brown's past that she often wished to forget. Now a successful restaurateur in Atlanta, Amie heads home to a place where she was once scrutinized and an object of ridicule for the townspeople. All except the one person who never judged her, the man who took her heart Roy Fulton. When Amie and Roy meet at long last, the sparks between the two are as hot as ever. However, Amie soon lets Roy know that over the years, things have changed things she doesn't know if he'll accept or not. Read on as Amie and Roy come to terms with the past as they make way for their future.
