

There's a thin line between lust and hate... Ana Chacon never much liked Luke Merrill, even if the arrogantly charming cowboy does make her heart race. From high school to adulthood, she's wanted nothing more than to beat him at everything. Now that they're running rival resorts, she can give her competitive instincts full rein--all in the name of business, of course. Since she stole away his best employee, Luke doesn't like Ana much, no matter that she makes his head spin. Things have always come easily to Luke--except Ana's approval. But Luke doesn't give up easily, and he's determined to win her over. Or at least negotiate a cease-fire. When they're forced to collaborate on a charity event, will Ana and Luke remain the worst of enemies... or could they become the best of lovers?
