

Keertan SOHILA: Joyful Retirement

All renderings attempting to explain the Divine path are quite difficult to comprehend. The Keertan SOHILA, which is such a work, was passed on to us many centuries ago. Languages are not static but dynamic and Punjabi language is no exception to this. This fact has not helped in the matter but has rather made it more complex. The collection of renderings of Guru Sahibs contained in Keertan SOHILA is recited by the Sikhs world-over as prayer after retiring from ones daily chores but before going to sleep. Though it is recorded in Guru Granth Sahib under the heading Sohila, the word Keertan (singing of gurbani in chorus) has probably got added to it as it is recited in the Gurudwaras at the end of the late evening / night Keertan. This attempts to reflect Guru Nanaks message to humanity to lead a purposeful life. In this book, the commentary, in black print, attempts explain in simple language the essence of the message contained in the prayer of this most modern & universal religion. Apart from the commentary, this book also contains the translations, of the original Punjabi renderings of Guru Sahibs, into English. All the available translations are narrative in nature and therefore, make it impossible to relate them to each word of the original rendering in Gurumukhi script. This effort has been made with the idea of setting right this imbalance. The translation, in coloured print, is given in as many words as in the original rendering in Punjabi language. Owing to the limitation of the difference in the grammar of the two languages, some words have been added, in the translation, to clarify the complete meaning. These additional words are mentioned in brackets. The commentary and the translation have been interspersed in such a manner that they complement each other for better comprehension by the reader. For easier segregated reading, the translation, in blue print, has been aligned right. However, where there is a direct instruction to be followed by human beings, the translation, in bold print, has been coloured red and has been center-aligned. Another aspect that may be mentioned is that Sikhism has certain concepts, which if not unique, are quite special to it. Few such important concepts are Guru, Baani/Gurbaani, Hukam, Maaya, Man, Haumain, Naam/Shabad, Sat/Sach/Waheguru and Simran. Understanding these concepts in right perspective would be a pre-requisite for anyone interested in gaining an in-depth familiarisation with the youngest religion of this world. These concepts have also been explained in the book. Some of the difficult words / terms used in the book have also been clarified in detail separately. The purpose of this collection known as Keertan Sohila is a kind of account-taking by an individual for his daily performance. Through recitation of this rendering, he is to remind himself the objective of human life and what progress has he made in that direction. He is also required to note the falterings, if any, and attempt rectification of the course on which his life is progressing.
