

Losing Brody once nearly destroyed Parker, and she is not about to give up so easily the second time. She vows to stay beside the man she loves, even if it could cost her life. Brody can't live with the thought that he might bring harm to the woman he loves. How can he get her to see he'd gladly give up his dangerous life to keep her safe? Will he deliberately break Parker's heart to make her to leave? The only thing for certain is that when Brody and Parker get together, sparks fly and the sheets burn with passion. Can their love survive in the midst of death threats and danger?
